in the sun, shining through the darkest night, the healing has begun, begun,
The healing has begun.
We are midwives on a journey, singing now as one, remembering the ancient ones, the healers and the wisdom, the

Community and Student News

New Faculty

Kristin Werth, MS in Biomedical Science, will be joining Birthingway this fall to teach Genetics. She has a son who will be two in October and a daughter due any day now. She is a big fan of childbirth and realized after the birth of her son how empowering it can be for women.

She is excited to be teaching future midwives and lactation consultants since she learned so much from them in her journey to motherhood. Her family moved to Portland from Denver, CO and have had a lot of fun exploring this great city.

Kristin Werth with her son

Brandee Grider, BS, CPM, LMT will be teaching the Physical Assessment I and II courses that she assisted for the past three years. After graduating from Birthingway in 2009, she added midwifery to her massage practice, Sacred Birth and Bodywork. She is currently also practicing with Glow Midwifery.

For fun, she mothers teenagers, gardens, and goes camping as often as she can.

Art Show Opening

On Friday, April 19, at the Warehouse Cafe in SE Portland, Birthingway kicked off the 20th anniversary year-long art show to demonstrate how birth art can serve as a beacon of hope toward a better way for birthing women and thus a better world for all.

The featured was provided by midwifery graduates, Joy Jech Cassie Hodge and Nicole Bendotoff; extension student Catherine Bailey; third year midwifery student, Erin Yocom; second year student Sarah Ehrlich; and community member Dane Eisenbart.

The Birthingway art show's next stop in July is at In Other Words on NE Killingsworth.

To view the locations for our upcoming shows, visit Birthingway.edu.

20th Anniversary Celebration

More than 250 students, faculty, alumnae, and staff came together on June 8th for an afternoon full of food sharing, eating scrumptious desserts, carnival clown antics, connecting with new and longtime friends, twirling partners at the family friendly square dance and, of course, celebrating 20 years of Birthingway!

We have so many to thank for all their efforts to make this event possible! We are always grateful to our community for their support. We also had generous dessert and food donors including Starbucks, Safeway, Franz Bakery, Trader Joe's, White Rabbit Bakery, and Papa Murphys.

The connection and love between friends, midwives and birth professionals was palpable. Thank you all!

Satellite Phone for Birth Professionals

Birthingway teacher and alumna, Heather Hack-Sullivan, is pioneering an effort to support dedicated Portland area birth professionals who are on-call for their clients by purchasing a satellite phone to have available to use on a day-to-day basis if they want to be out of cell range.

This campaign is asking for the money to buy the phone, it's accessories (chargers, battery, holster, etc.), and to buy some prepaid minutes.

If you would like to donate, go to http://www.indiegogo.com/projects/satellite-phone-for-portland-midwives?show\_todos=true.

Reflections: Walking Through

by Catherine Bailey

I walked through the front door of an old house for the first time one November night, several years ago. It was dark outside, cold and raining. I was there for an interview. I had decided I wanted to be a midwife. I had dressed up in my Texas professional lady finest – a white button down shirt, a black pencil skirt, black tights, black heels.

I walked through the door, trying my best to leave my nerves outside, welcomed by smiling faces - smiling faces of vibrant, powerful, strong, dedicated, nurturing, loving women. The light was soft and warm. They wore sweaters and scarves and drank tea. I envied their corduroy pants. I answered their questions and I did not want to leave when it was all over. I had walked into the rest of my life that night, when I walked through that door, without knowing it yet.

Do you remember the first time you walked through the front door of Birthingway?

Birthingway took each of you in, sometime after this first entrance, and held you there, nursed you through these past several years. Through all your excitements, your struggles, your happy days and hard ones, through your classes and endless homework, through relationships beginning and relationships ending, through your pregnancies and births, watching you become mothers, and midwives, Birthingway has been there.

Your cohort has heard your stories, watched you grow, seen you cry, found your cervix...

I am honored by my friends, who are paving the way for me and for many more midwives to come, as you walk out of Birthingway's doors tonight.

I have been thinking lately about the power in the space of a doorway. We get called to births now and we might be tired, half asleep, or over-caffeinated and jittery. We might be in the middle of reading a bedtime story to our babies, in the middle of a fight with a partner, or worse, in the middle of something much more fun with a partner. We put our pants back on and rush away, to someone's home or to a birth center. The car ride gives us a chance to think about what we left behind and think about where we're heading, and then we arrive.

When I arrive at a laboring mama's house I knock quietly, take a deep breath, open the door and enter her space – leaving all my thoughts behind. I am here for her now. I sense the divine in the room. I am quiet. I search deep inside for all the warmth, love, joy, and peace I have within me and send it out through my heart, my hands. I touch this mama with respect and love. I think positive thoughts about her.

I know all of this in my mind from what I've learned at Birthingway, in my hands from the midwives who've come before me, who I've learned from, from the women themselves, and in my heart from a deep knowing that this is what the moment calls for.

Each of you have walked through Birthingway's doors - again and again your commitment, passion, and perseverance keep you coming back week after week.

Each of you have walked through the door into the room of a laboring woman.

Each of you have seen more love and joy in a room than you ever thought possible.

Each of you have walked with a woman through something beautiful, something magical, something tragic, something terrifying.

Each of you have walked a woman through the emergency room doors.

Each of you have felt a brand new being emerge from its mother's body into your hands.

Each of you have walked through so many doors on this journey since walking through Birthingway's door for the first time. You have had so many firsts along your way. Moments of growth, learning, struggle....Your path has taken many curves, has lengthened a time or few, and has provided many opportunities for moving into the next part of your life, into your higher self.

As you walk tonight into the next section of the rest of your lives, may you carry with you in your hearts and minds and hands, all that you've learned along the way. May you carry the sense of community you found at Birthingway with you wherever you go and may you remember that this community will always be a part of you.

Walking Through was written and read by Catherine Bailey at Birthingway's midwifery graduation ceremony on June 27, 2013.

Are you working with a Spanish Speaking Family?

"The benefits of having a Spanish-speaking midwife are huge, especially if she understands the Latino culture and customs of pregnant and birthing/postpartum women. I think my husband felt more at ease knowing that if he needed to clarify something, he could pose his question in Spanish and could get a response in his native language. It's essential for a woman to have a great birthing experience to feel comfortable and respected where she is birthing. When people are able to communicate, they trust and worry less about being misunderstood or being disrespected."
