Birthingway's Traditions: Admissions Process

Birthingway midwifery students chatting with applicants during an admissions event, Meet & Greet.

Birthingway's admissions process reflects our core values and beliefs as described in our Student Handbook and Catalog, especially those of relationship and multi-vocality.

The Birthingway community is formed by interactions between individuals, multiplied many times over. We support a model of power with and power within rather than the power over so common in our world.

We emphasize face to face interactions, compassionate communication skills and personal responsibility. We value kindness and the highest standard of personal integrity as essential characteristics of all members of our community. We value the feedback and insights that every member of our community brings to the table.

So how is all this reflected in our admissions process? Students who apply to Birthingway must be willing to share about themselves. The questions, both in the written application and the interview, seek to help the admissions team create a fuller picture of each applicant as an individual. The admissions team is made up of staff, faculty, and enrolled midwifery or lactation students, depending on the program. Each member of the team reads every application we receive.

The applications can be quite lengthy, so this is a real commitment to the process of getting to know each applicant.

Each team member participates in a number of personal interviews as well, to help deepen that relationship with some of the candidates. The personal interviews are an opportunity for Birthingway to provide information about our community as well as to learn more about each applicant. These interviews are an example of the way we model power with and within. Although interviews are intimidating, we try mix challenging questions with more light hearted ones.

Our final decision process, however, is the surest sign of our commitment to multi-vocality. We set aside a full day to discuss each applicant. Every member of the team attends this gathering. Each applicant is presented in the same way to the group and then the whole group discusses the candidates and votes. We choose through a consensus process and no one member of the admissions team has more or less say about the class selection, not even the President.

This creates a process that truly embodies how Birthingway's core values and beliefs.

A Successful Admissions Season: Thank You to Our Admissions Teams!

Choosing the next incoming midwifery and lactation program cohorts is a tireless job. It is the unwavering support and dedication of staff and students that make our very unique and conscientious selection process possible!

For the Admission Committees, the past few months have been filled with many responsibilities including interviews, discussion, late meetings and, of course, hours of close reading of applications.

Our heartfelt “thank you” goes to the following students who volunteered on the midwifery admissions committee: Ray Rachlin, Megan Coppock, Sarah Ehrlich, Em Stevenson, Sharon Evans, Kyla Carstensen, Talia Wang, Maggie Bennett, Jamie Oller, Kelsey Sullivan, Melissa Wiseman, and Charli Zarosinski.

We are also extremely thankful to our lactation student committee members: Lisa Keres, Erin Husky, Krystal Key, Elka Sundwall, and Sarah Longwell who volunteered to help select the next lactation program cohort.

The staff admissions committee members were Amari Fauna, Julia Reid, Lucina Armstrong, Lauren Edholm, Nancy Longatan, Rhonda Ray, and Holly Scholles. A special “thank you” to Sarah Kinsel for facilitating the ten hour meeting on Saturday, January 12 to select Birthingway's midwifery matriculating class of 2014! We will announce the names of our newly enrolled students in the summer newsletter.

Lactation Program

As part of our Associates in Lactation Consultation (ALC) program, Birthingway offers on-campus clinical training experience, to those who qualify, through our Breast-feeding Center (BFC) - the only one of its kind in the country!

The BFC provides a unique experience for students to work with mothers and babies in both office and home settings.

We offer clients two-hour long visits and routinely do four to six, or more, visits per client. This affords students the opportunity to learn how to provide comprehensive and individualized biodynamic care.

At the BFC, students also develop the skills necessary to run a successful private lactation practice. Our students finish their work here ready to start providing excellent lactation care!
