Poems

We have found a way to live.
 But we wonder just how long it will take you to become ready.
 This planet is in trouble and human form is depleting its own.
 Too many years have been lost on frustrations of the soul. Do you not see the life you are meant to live?
 The life you are forging into being.
 We are here to show the way.
 Times of darkness bring clouds of light.
 Be open to the gifts we bring and you will be given choices beyond understanding.
 Is life not for living?
 Free to be who we really are.
 We are spirits dwelling in human form.
 Here to learn, to become. We gather in the spirit.
 Our selves long for freedom from being slaves to desire.
 Slaves to limitations of this form.
 Slaves to what we have been taught.
 The truth is coming. The spirit is waking to a long depth of knowledge hidden.
 Sacred journeys, path of the few.
 Chosen and blessed are they.
 Blessed are the souls touched.
 We dwell for purpose not yet seen by many.
 Few are here, more will come.
 We are the gatekeepers to doors forgotten.
 In ancient times we spoke of what was, and what was yet to be.
 Now we claim it is time to learn what it is to be free.
 As gatekeepers to the soul it takes much to grow.
 Life here is but a plain for those that are to become one of us.
 There is a level of freedom that comes with opening of the the gate.
 For the gate is the road to understanding.
 Understanding is a way of being.
 When understanding comes the soul
 When understanding comes the soul will flourish.
 It will be at peace.
 Anger, pain, fear, it will be no longer a need to hold.
 It will be shed from the being.

Fantasy

Tender tits were the first sign.

Two weeks older than a meandering blastocyst and my nipples are already anticipating your pretty little mouth.

Every morsel I bring to my lips has your name written on it, and every gaseous bubble thereafter is for you, my love.

You are slowly hijacking this shop of mine. Inhaling deeply has become a conscious exercise. My ribs are the drum to your rhythmic kicks. I am sporting varicose veins and hemorrhoids for your pleasure.

My ruggae will flatten like socks that stretched a little too far in the wash. White war scars lace hips and belly, acid carves channels up the esophagus. One day my scalp will become a deciduous forest, my breasts will deflate when the party's over, and somehow, you are worth every bit of it.

I am so in love I never knew what being in love meant until now. Does that make me a narcissist?

My organs are remodeling – and not for aesthetic purposes.

Intestines and stomach grumble that they must live in such close quarters, my diaphragm barely musters a hiccup of discontent. Heavy, round, full, my hands petting myself all day long. I receive attention wherever I go and I purr.

The thought of labor makes me rush to the toilet with nervous excitement. I sense that I will be good at letting go, at opening up to this sacred ritual. I am ready for my rite of passage. My initiation. I am ready to discover the strength of my muscles.

Women speaks of Women

Daughter. Tell her that I wear the crown of all her sorrows. Tell her that it's a crown of leaves, not thorns. Tell her that it's a crown of stars. Tell her that the pain flows through generations like a river. Tell her that my river is blue, and it has deepened. It has smoothened the rocks underneath. Tell her I bathe in it, this river, and it no longer hurts me.

Tell her there is joy, too. My joy is like a secret orange, tasted in the moonlight, and hers, tell her. Tell her to unpeel it, and it will be that delicate skin and weight against her fingers it will glow.

Tell her that age is nothing but a story and life but faith. It's this faith which is a miracle.

Daughter, don't swallow your anger so it trickles and burns. Don't throw it back at yourself like a thousand hot knives.

Remember your river and let it run for you there.

Remember that you are an animal, you are a bright painted bird and a young lion, too, who has a roar, and daughter it will scare you but open your mouth.

I am telling you to roar, I am telling you to sing.

Otherwise we keep it closed and closed and we feel the stomach moving, a low boil, constant. It is when your stomach boils, baby, that you shake. You tremble imperceptibly and tight and that becomes your body and you tremble, you are terrified.

You don't feel your shaking anymore as such. You think it's the way the earth moves or the wind blows, it's the city you think, all those cars. And still it is shaking tense and hot, and if you could hear it the kettle would be whispering a reedy constant whistle but it's mute. It lies inside of you and you are wound like a coil and I tell you to let it out, if only you would open your mouth.

Listen baby there is a fire inside of you. This one licks the walls of your mind. It pops and crackles, it cackles, vicious fire. Sometimes it feeds you and you draw shapes and moons and you burn with living and like it there, alive, inside you.

And sometimes, it leaps, it spreads so smoky you can't see, so hot you are afraid, and each breath fans the flames.

And yet you live, everyday, and it's faith.

If only you could see the miracle, if only you would open your mouth.

Student Voice

So You Want to Be an Apprentice?

Congratulations! You made it through the self reflective application, the Meet and Greet, and even an intense interview. You are now a Birthingway student, enjoying reading all sorts of books that feed your soul and creating forms for your future midwifery practice as homework; all while eating delicious lunch at least once a week and connecting with people who share your passion for childbirth. And then, the realization hits you in one year, if you choose, you could add apprentice midwife to your growing list of titles: student, doula, nanny, etc.

Approaching my 2nd year, I found myself eager to experience more hands-on skills. Beginning my apprenticeship seemed logical and exciting. Rather than worry about finances, I decided first to see if I could find a compatible midwife to work with. After two interviews, I found a match and once the excitement wore off I realized that, after I started being on-call, neither of my jobs as a care-giver and gymnastics instructor would be compatible with leaving at various times during the week to attend birthing women. I am currently embracing the changes it takes to be a student apprentice.

Friends and family often ask me "which work?" when I tell them "I'm headed to work early tomorrow," as I've been used to working a variety of jobs since I moved to Portland. Finding ways to earn money, while of course taking out student loans, and sharing a room with my supportive fiancé, has been a creative outlet. My housemate, a Birthingway extension student, and I decided to start a Handywomen Business. We nanny, clean houses, paint, build chicken coops, install gardens, and landscape. While we could mow your lawn, we prefer to replace it with tomatoes and chard instead. On the side, I have also been making large amounts of sauerkraut and kimchee, and selling to friends and students mostly to support my own love of fermented foods. While I'm still a very new apprentice, I'm hopeful and trust that with a little creativity and a lot of hard work, I will make ends meet.

Other apprentices figured out this system of doing several different off-the-grid jobs or regular night jobs. While going to school, one recent Birthingway graduate I spoke with said she had a dog walking business during the week, worked nights as a CNA at the hospital and sometimes nannied on the weekend and attended classes during the week. Not everyone is driven to finish so quickly. Many students choose to wait until after core classes are finished, and they may even move out of state or overseas for part or all of their apprenticeship. Having children, getting married, and enjoying a slower pace are all reasons people may wait to start their apprenticeships. There are many channels to take on this river that leads to becoming a wise woman midwife. My two pieces of advice are 1) Enjoy being a student since you theoretically have three years of schooling and a lifetime to actually be a midwife and 2) be open, creative, and trusting when it comes to finding work during your apprenticeship (and go to an OMC meeting once in a while)! Feel free to write your own experience, hopes, frustrations, or desires in the next installment of this newsletter.

New Staff/Faculty Bios

We are excited to welcome these fabulous new staff and faculty members to our Birthingway community.

Jena Novotny – Faculty Coordinator

“I come to Birthingway College of Midwifery with a background in working in fundraising for educational institutions and most recently as a doula with Birthjourneys Doula Collective. For many years I have been focused on the wonders of birth and the amazing wisdom of a woman's body. I first became interested in birth when I lived in New York City and worked for a wonderful doula who focused her practice on water birth. She helped open my eyes to the different methods of birth and I became intrigued with doulas and what they have to offer. I was sold on the idea of a woman being surrounded by continuous support throughout her labor!

When I am not working at Birthingway or as a doula, I am a wife, a mother of a three-year-old little girl, and enjoy running and playing outdoors.

I am thrilled to be part of the Birthingway community and to work with women dedicated to teaching and supporting our midwifery students.”

Sadie Eck – Operations Assistant

Sadie is originally from a very small town in Central Indiana. After graduating high school she spent a year working for Americorps NCCC in South Carolina. It was there she started thinking about becoming a home birth midwife. After Americorps, she moved to Northern California, going to school and working with teens with disabilities. She started to look into the birthing community more and while visiting Portland, she fell in love with the city and found Birthingway College. She moved here a few months after visiting and jumped into her doula training. Sadie has been a labor and postpartum doula for years now and is very excited to be a new member of the Birthingway community. She enjoys knitting, cooking and taking her dog, Luka, for long walks.

Julia Reid – Administrative Programs Coordinator/Financial Aid Officer

“I am honored to be a part of the Birthingway staff. Before coming here, I was a 2007 graduate of Lewis and Clark College. While at Lewis and Clark, I studied Sociology/Anthropology with an emphasis on education. During this time, I was fortunate enough to pursue this passion by working with an amazing group of students at Capitol Hill Elementary in SW Portland as they moved from kindergarten through third grade.

After graduation, I found a teacher assistant position to three 5th grade classrooms in North Carolina. Unfortunately, NC wasn't the best fit for me, and after spending some time with family in Wisconsin, I decided to come back to the city I love...Portland!

Birthingway has allowed me to work with education from a completely different vantage point and I am very excited to be a part of the wonderful work that is going on here. As a new auntie (Parker, my nephew, being one reason for my brief stay in the Midwest), I have great respect for the work all of you wonderful students have chosen to pursue. My goal is to be a resource for all students as they pursue their dreams here at Birthingway. When not at Birthingway, you can find me hiking, biking, running, gardening, cooking and exploring all corners of the Pacific Northwest.”

Corey Branstrom – Technical Coordinator

Originally from Santa Barbara, CA, Corey went to UC Berkeley, then moved to San Francisco where he rode the dot com boom by working for several companies that no longer exist. He met his future wife at a costume birthday party in SoMa and they were married in 2000. Corey and Emily Rose moved to Eugene for a slower paced lifestyle and the chance to go back to school. Corey earned his MA in Elementary Education from the U of O. Their son, Brilleg, was born in February 2005. After 3 years of teaching, Corey realized that it was not the career for him. Seeking a more urban environment, the family moved to Portland in 2007. With almost a decade of experience working with computers and the internet, he has returned to his nerdy roots as the Technical Coordinator for Birthingway.

Stephanie Farrell - Instructor

Dr. Stephanie Farrell, N.D. has joined Birthingway as our new Microbiology teacher. “I consider myself fortunate to have the opportunity to teach midwifery students who play an important role in supporting women and their families.” Dr. Farrell has wanted to teach and practice Naturopathic medicine since an early age. After receiving her Bachelors degree from Portland State University, she moved to Japan and taught English there. She was impressed by Japanese ancient healthcare practices and this experience cemented her calling to practice natural healthcare. In 2007, Dr. Farrell graduated from the National College of Natural Medicine in Portland, Oregon. She founded the Inspire Natural Health Center in Northeast Portland and offers clinical nutrition, botanical medicine, homeopathy and physical medicine there. She has a three year old daughter, born at home with her midwives assistance, and enjoys being with her family, gardening, hiking, bicycling and camping.

Melanya Gonshorowski (2nd year student) and her sweetheart Alex will be married on September 11, 2009 in Nevada City, CA. They will be having a 3 day camp-out wedding bash there and will also have a Portland celebration at the end of August.

Kim Wilson (extension student) and her sweet man, Dayv, will be married on June 19th, 2009 in Bridal Veil, OR. Their adorable 2 ½ year old daughter, Harper, will be one of their flower girls.

Melissa Maureen (2nd year student) and her soul mate, Tim, will be married in the Celtic tradition of a handfasting ceremony on August 1st. They will be wed, and then "roll" across the broom, on the property that Tim grew up on in Clatskanie, OR.

May Blessings Abound!

Pregnancies

Two little beings sprouted in the bellies of Birthingway students this term. Micaela Evans (3rd year student) and her partner Caleb, and Emilia Smith (2nd year student) and her partner Oliver, are pregnant. Both babies are due in December. Also, Birthingway alumni and midwife/preceptor (at Andaluz Waterbirth Center) Jesica Dolin is due with her first baby in October. We wish them all much good health and joy in this growthful time.

Births

Our beloved Rachael Koeson (former Faculty Coordinator) and her partner, Aaron, have a new addition to their family. Beautiful 8 lb Ruby Mae was born at sunrise on June 1st, 2009 in their little cabin in Corbett. Rachael explained, "it was a long and difficult labor for all of us and she came gently into the world, healthy, perfect and in her own time." They have spent the last week staring, watching, listening, touching and watching, listening, touching and loving their precious baby girl. Rachael added, "We are so grateful for all of your love, support, interest, gifts, food, and excitement with us. Thank you!"

Former student Kimberly Wise gave birth to baby Sage born at home on June 19, 2009. She was received into her father's hands in the wee hours of the morning weighing 9 lbs, and is a complete joy!

Finally, BCM alumni and practicing midwife, Jacqueline Meyer (previously Zapp-Garcia) and her wife Mari welcomed their precious son Abraham Charles on April 13, 2009. He was born at home and weighed in at 8 lbs, 14oz.

Welcome to the World!

Thank You's

Plant Sale Thank You's

What a success in 2009! We had our 7th annual Plant Sale the first weekend of May. Many thanks to all involved to make this event happen:

Ben & Jerry's on Hawthorne, Polly Gottesman with Pumpkin Ridge Gardens, Nicole Bendotoff, Jasmine Marotta-Jaenecke, Whitney Stolman, Catherine Bailey, Serena Lynch, Terra Senter and Melanya Gonshorowski.

We would also like to thank everyone who donated starts, including Aurora Crosetti, Cassandra Breer, Melanya Gonshorowski and Caitlin Lopez.

See everyone next year-happy planting!

Donation Thank You's

Thank you to the generous area midwives and community members who have provided donations of expired and/or unneeded supplies for our students to use in skills class! So far this year we have received supply donations from Alma Midwifery, Andaluz Waterbirth Center, Heather Hack, and Madrona Bourdeau.

We would like to thank Susan Moray, Anne Frye and Kathryn Constant for donating books and videos to our library.

We would like to thank Karen Roeske for providing us the supplies from her practice at a low cost! Our Lactation Consultant clinic will be well stocked thanks to her generosity.

Thanks also to Melinda Russell for donating two beautiful love seats for our new clinic space!

Your generous contributions help us continue to provide quality education for aspiring midwives while keeping tuition as low as possible! Thank you.

ARM MODELS

Have a little extra time on Wednesday afternoons? Please come by Birthingway to be an IV model! Our third year students practice IV skills every term, and we are always in need of extra "arms". To be an IV model you must be over 18 and have veins. You will earn $10 per poke, limit one poke per arm. Please call the school at 503-760-3131 to make sure class is being held the day you want to come.

BELLY MODELS

All through fall term, our students will need tummies to touch and listen to so they can practice their midwifery skills. If you (or someone you know) will be at least 20 weeks pregnant by September and would like to earn $20 for 1 hour – 2 hours with our very gentle and loving students, call the school at 503-760-3131.

Federal Work Study Updates

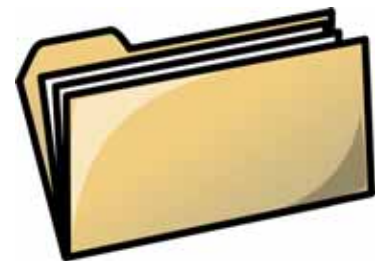

We are just wrapping up our first year of Federal Work Study and are excited to announce our plans to continue offering this program for 2009-10. Federal Work Study is a wonderful program available to eligible students who qualify for federal aid. Under this program, students can work up to part-time to earn money towards their education.

This past year, we began by offering work-study positions with SMART, a Portland area literacy program that places you and your love of reading with a second or third grade student. We are excited to continue working with literacy programming in the Portland area for the upcoming award year.

We anticipate being able to offer work study awards to 3-4 Birthingway students.

Complete Your FAFSA!

Now is the time to complete your Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) for fall 2009 through spring 2010! The FAFSA can be completed online at www.fafsa.ed.gov and is due August 7th, 2009. If you have any questions or concerns, please stop by and see Julia or email julia@birthingway.edu.

Application Season

Fall term for Birthingway means midwifery program admissions! The application deadline is October 15th, then interviews are scheduled over the following month or so, up to the Meet and Greet on November 20th. Applicants then have a little time to finish up any fall-term prerequisites before our final decision meeting in early January. It is an exciting time that we look forward to each year!
